

EDITORIAL

The Turkish Journal of Endocrinology and Metabolism is a great source of pride for our organisation. It represents who our Society's members are : creme de la creme. The success of this journal depends on the contributing authors as well as our volunteer reviewers and editorial board members.

In our journal we bring you a variety of endocrine-related topics, aiming to highlight news from all subspecialities, including diabetes, obesity, thyroid, bones, adrenals and pitiitary. Exciting research and clinical practice developments are occuring throughout endocrinology, from new drugs to evolving disease management and to a new understanding of the molecular pathways behind various disorders. Your research generally reflects these developments.

As in this issue of the journal, you will start to see more reviews which will provide educational insight in many areas of endocrinology. The Editorial Board is waiting for your contributions.

Sincerely,

Prof.Dr. Sema Akalin
Editor